Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 03 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Showers in south, cold and dull in the east again.

Today:
Occasional rain in the south, with a few heavy showers developing and possibly a rumble of thunder in the far south and south-west. Fog and low cloud slowly lifting, but remaining dull and misty for many eastern parts of England.

Tonight:
Outbreaks of rain in the south and far north, else a lot of low cloud with patchy fog. Some wintry showers over hills of northern England.

Thursday:
Rain clearing the south-east, with fog and low cloud slowly lifting to allow limited brightness. Showers in the north moving south, then some sunny spells.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Fine and dry with sunny spells, but cold with some hard night frosts. Cloud and rain pushing into the far northwest and west later Saturday and into Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.